OUR DIRECTOR

Dr Arjun Bopanna, is an international athlete. He completed his Medical education from Kempegowda Institute of Medical science, after which he pursued civil services examinations.

Dr Arjun Bopanna was selected as Assistant commandant, Central armed Police forces in 2014. In 2017, he was selected as Assistant Director, Department of social welfare, Karnataka Administrative services.

He is also the founder of an online portal called Namma-KPSC (www.nammakpsc.com), for civil services examinations, helping aspirants in distant and rural places.

Dr Arjun Bopanna is also the editor in chief of the Current affair Magazine, Mahithi Monthly (which publishes current affair in English and Kannada). He is also the author of 'Indian Economy', which is one of the best selling book on Indian Economy for Civil services examinations.

NIDHIN VALSAN
IPS Deputy Commissioner of Police

Nidhin Valsan, hailing from Thalassery, Kerala, is an AGMUT cadre police officer. To fulfil his childhood dream of entering uniformed services, Mr. Valsan gave up his plush corporate job to pursue civil services. His dream was fulfilled in 2011 when he was selected to the elite Indian police services. Early in his career, Nidhi Valsan has made national news. As ACP, he was part of the team which solved a sensational case involving the recovery of the largest electronic goods, etching his name in LIMCA book of records.

Dr. SAHANA HADIMANI
Assistant Commissioner

Born to a decorated police officer, her training to serve society began at an early age. After pursuing her MBBS, Dr Hadimani realised that her patients' problems were much bigger than health issues, many of whom came from hilly areas or backward districts. This is when Dr Sahana decided to pursue civil services and become an agent of change. Hailing from one of the backward districts of Karnataka, her journey has been an inspiration to many.

As a faculty member, she helped build Bangalore School of Civil Services to its present glory. After her entry into civil services as an Assistant commissioner, she has been our honorary mentor, guiding us and our students at regular intervals.
